ACCIDENTS, VIOLENCE TAKE THE TOLL OF 150; EIGHT PERSONS DIED IN AUTO CRASHS IN GEORGIA

PRO-JAP OFFICIAL OF CHINA IS SLAIN; SHANGHAI TENSE

Further Student Outbreaks Feared as Result of Assassination of Former Vice Minister of Foreign Affairs Tang

NIPPONESE GUARD AGAINST RIOTING

Victim, an Ex-Aid to Wang, Had Served as Go-Between in Recent Sino-Jap Negotiations.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 26.—(Thursday) Tension mounted high in the international settlement early today following the assassination last night of Tang Yu-jen, vice minister of Chinese railways, by gunmen in the French concession.

Tang was pro-Japanese. He was the former vice minister of foreign affairs under Wang King-wei, former premier of China and president of the executive Yuan, who was shot by an assassin November 1, but survived. Wang himself is still in serious condition.

Foreigners feared that student outbreaks and other anti-Japanese activities would result.

Armed patrols of Japanese sailors marched through the streets in the Hongkew area as a precaution against possible incidents arising from the killing.

Tang's chauffeur told the police of the killing. He said his master was killed by two men in Chinese dress who shot him seven times at close range.

Tank had just left his automobile to enter a house in the French concession.

Political Motive.

The French police said the motive of the crime probably was political.

Tang had arrived Tuesday from Nanking, where he interviewed Major General Rensuke Isogai, the Japanese military attaché, who is reported to be studying the important pending Sino-Japanese problem.

The Japanese embassy issued a statement deploring the assassination, and describing it as a domestic issue.

Commenting informally, Japanese officials voiced concern, pointing out that Tang was a friend of Japan and declaring his assassination probably was a result of his friendly attitude toward the Japanese.

Sino-Jap Go-Between.

Tang had served the Chinese government as the chief go-between in recent Sino-Japanese negotiations.

He quit his post in the foreign ministry when Wang King-wei resigned following his wounding. Wang still remains in a serious condition and his post as foreign minister of China recently was taken over by Chang Chun, the Japanese-educated former governor of Honan province.

From Nanking came reports tonight that small arms of students from Shanghai were approaching the capital by automobile, bicycle and afoot, while all through traffic on the railroads was again paralyzed after the passage of a single train.

Nanking authorities are taking steps to check possible disorders.

Ted Healy Is Shot, Jailed After Party

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 25.—(UP) Ted Healy, film comedian, was arrested and placed in jail today on suspicion of arson as culmination of a mysterious Christmas party at the home of Bonnie Oredell, at Santa Monica.

The actor was suffering from a gunshot wound in the hand, which, he said, was inflicted at the party.

Healy was arrested after his hostess, Miss Oredell, complained to police that he had thrown her furniture around and finally set fire to it at the party.

When officers of the arson squad arrested Healy, his hand was bandaged. He said "someone" shot him when he called on Miss Oredell, but couldn't give details of the shooting.

Gives Harvard $500,000

HARVARD RECEIVES GIFT OF $500,000

Thomas Lamont Makes Donation To Establish Political Economy Chair

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 25.—(AP) Harvard University received a half million dollar Christmas present today from Thomas W. Lamont, partner in J. P. Morgan & Company, to establish a new chair in political economy.

The 65-year-old banker, a Harvard graduate and former overseer of the college, gave the money for one of a series of new university professorships toward which alumni are being asked to contribute in recognition of Harvard's 300th anniversary next year.

Lamont's gift and others will establish interdepartmental "roving" professorships of a new type, and create large annual national prize scholarships.

In making his gift, the banker, who is a trustee of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, said "it would be a great satisfaction if the (Harvard) corporation were able to call to this chair a scholar pre-eminent in the field of political economy."

He stipulated, however, that there was no restriction whatsoever to his gift, but since the university ordinarily follows a donor's suggestions in such matters, it appeared likely the $500,000 would be used for a professorship in political economy.

Explaining his views on that study, Lamont said:

"This vital subject has to do, I take it, with the fundamental principles which govern human affairs, as they concern the state and as they concern individuals. Political economy concerns itself as much with the behavior of man as a social animal as it does with any known laws of industry and trade and agriculture and finance.

"And when I speak of fundamental principles, I do not mean old principles of new ones, or conservative principles any more than radical principles, but rather those principles which take into account the experience of the past, and are at the same time alive to the needs and aspirations of the present."

Acknowledging the gift, Harvard's president, Dr. James Bryant Conant, said: "You have made it clear to all that you believe the privately endowed institutions must be strengthened in these uncertain days."

The icicles Santa Claus found hanging from the eaves in many parts of Georgia are expected to remain today with the added prospect of snow.

The weather bureau here said there would be only a slight moderation in the cold in north and central portions of the state.

Clouds and unsettled weather were predicted for the entire state. A low of 21 degrees was recorded here yesterday, but the mercury later rose to 36.

ARMY AIR FORCE TO BE INCREASED BY BIG PURCHASE

War Bureau Officials Are Expected To Announce Contract for 82 New Planes This Week.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25.—(AP) Speeding its program for strengthening the wings of the army, the War Department is expected to announce contracts for 82 additional pursuit planes by the end of this week.

Army officers said today that completion of this year's purchases will give them an air fleet superior in point of modernity to all other nations with the possible exception of Germany.

The new pursuit plane purchases, plus two transport ships which may be ordered at the same time, will bring to 708 the number of aircraft purchased by the War Department since June, 1934, at a cost of $9,000,000. All but 103 have been ordered this year.

The total includes 540 combat ships—bombers, attack and pursuit types—with the remainder training, observation and cargo planes.

Newest Air Fleet.

"No other world power, with the possible exception of Germany will have anything comparable to our air fleet on the basis of number of modern ships in service," said one high official who declined to be quoted by name.

"We don't know how much building Germany has done recently—although it is supposed to be extensive—but none of the other large nations."

CHANGES SOUGHT IN NEUTRALITY ACT

National Peace Parley Asks Law To Replace Measure Now in Force.

NEW YORK, Dec. 25.—(UP)—A new neutrality act authorizing the President to embargo exports of all articles and commodities essential to the continuing conduct of war was advocated tonight by the national peace conference.

The new act would replace the present law which expires February 29, 1936, and which outlaws export of warlike materials, including arms, munitions or implements of war, oil, cotton, scrap iron and other basic essentials for war are not covered by the present act.

With serious war threats to the east and west of America, neutrality legislation is sure to be among the nation's problems in the coming year, the congress which convenes next month.

The proposed new neutrality act was drafted by a committee headed by Dr. James T. Shotwell, noted authority on international affairs, historian, trustee of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, and president of the League of Nations Association.

New Provisions.

It goes much farther than the existing neutrality act, and would carry these provisions:

1. Requesting the President to negotiate with signatories of the Kellogg-Briand pact (and treaty to clarify rights and duties of neutrals and of the parties to the pact in case one of them should resort to force in violation of its obligations).
2. Authorizing the President to embargo all exports of warlike materials to belligerent nations with discretion as to when such an embargo should be imposed and the articles to be included. It is mandatory in that it must be applied equally to all belligerents.
3. Authorizing the President in certain cases (when it appears that neutrals are transshipping foreign war materials to belligerent nations) to apply quotas restricting trade with neutrals in war materials to normal peacetime levels.
4. Providing that losses resulting from an embargo on war materials not "arms, ammunition or implements of war" shall be distributed and borne by the people of the United States.
5. Authorizing the President to forbid loans and credits to belligerents, within his discretion, but with equal treatment of all belligerents.
6. Authorizing the President, with the consent of congress, to lift any or all of the above mentioned embargoes which have been attacked in violation of a treaty.
7. Authorizing the President to forbid American vessels to proceed through areas where belligerent naval operations are being carried on. In time of war, no American vessel could leave an American port without a special license.
8. Shipping companies would be compensated for lost trade.

Limited Effect.

Explaining the first provision, the committee said that "domestic neutrality laws can have only a limited effect, and must be supplemented by international agreements before the United States can be even moderately secure against war."

"Since the rights of neutrals in time of war are now uncertain and disputed,"

Spirit of Yule Spreads Warmth Over Hearts of Rich, Poor Here

Selfishness and Strife of Everyday Life Give Way to Joy as All Atlanta Joins Balance of World in Celebrating Christmas With Goodwill Abounding Everywhere.

The great, undying spirit of Yule—its glow of love and good fellowship over Atlanta yesterday and filled the hearts of men with the happy benediction of the Savior whose birth brought the light of the message, "Peace on earth, good will toward men."

As Atlanta relaxes today after the holiday excitement of greeting old friends, unwrapping beautiful Christmas packages and revelling in the joyous spirit of the season, reminiscences bring to the mind of many the thought of how good it would be to substitute the selfishness and strife of everyday life with the warm gestures of friendship and kindness.

With that thought a spark of determination is born, with its cumulative power accounting for many of the fine and unselfish actions of men throughout the year.

And among the crushed tinsel and bright colored paper that once clothed the gifts of friendship can be seen the reflection of the contributions to the city's needy made out of the generous greatness of Atlanta's heart.

Many a poor hearth was made warm and cheery by the goodwill gifts of more fortunate citizens. Atlanta has never failed to respond in time of need and there are few who could enjoy their own prosperity at Christmas time without bringing help and happiness to someone less fortunate.

The Big Brothers, that energetic organization of Atlanta men and women who work the whole Christmas season for the happiness of the poor, made Christmas a day of celebration instead of lamentation for 500 needy families.

The Constitution's 10 Opportunities grew to 12 as the generous spirit of Atlantans swelled the much-needed contributions. These 12 needy little families have been given the greatest Christmas gift their desperate hearts could desire—the assurance of another full year free from the chilling fear of starvation and separation from loved ones.

Santa Claus visited needy Atlanta families on the solicitation of 100 other charitable enterprises. The tinkling bells of the Salvation Army which pervaded the rush and bustle of pre-Christmas activities brought cheer in the form of food and clothing to its legion of dependents.

ROPER TO LAUNCH NEW JOB STUDIES

Campaign Designed To Increase Employment, Business Profits in 1936

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25.—(AP)—The Commerce Department has launched a campaign to determine through personal conferences and statistical analyses of individual industries just how the government can best co-operate to increase employment and profits.

Encouraged by a successful start with the automobile and fisheries industries, Secretary Roper, it was learned today, plans to apply the same technique to all major lines, with special attention paid to problems of smaller business organizations.

Coincidentally, Major George L. Berry, the President's co-ordinator for industrial progress, announced he had written national trade associations which have not accepted an invitation to attend the meeting of his industrial council next January 6.

The announcement said Berry had reminded the trade groups of the meeting, and had "emphasized that the council will function as liaison between the government and industry."

Ideas Correlated.

Management and labor sources which have indicated they will attend with members observers also were written, Berry said, and notified that "statements, plans, formulae and legislative proposals" already received are being correlated and summarized for consideration by the council.

Although Commerce Department officials added any company observers to the campaign with the old NRA, it was made plain they consider the scheme to involve one basic idea of the defunct agency—promotion of an effective partnership between industry and government.

The conferences between spokesmen for the industries and officials of the department (and treaty to clarify rights and duties of neutrals and of the parties to the pact in case one of them should resort to force in violation of its obligations).

Among others, Jewel Carmo, former actress and wife of West, said she saw a woman resembling Miss Todd with a foreign-sounding man on a large automobile in Hollywood last night.

Johnson indicated he believed the grand jury would clear up the case—a matter the coroner's jury failed to do when it found she died of a heart attack.

Johnson declined to comment on the testimony so far presented the grand jury.

Among the witnesses expected to be heard Friday are Zasu Pitts, the actress, and Pasquale Di Cicco, former husband of Miss Todd. Di Cicco is returning by airplane from the east to aid the investigation.

Yule 'Day After' Finds Many Sad As Result of Crashes on Holiday

THREE ARE KILLED ON CITY STREETS DURING CHRISTMAS

Eight Reported Dead, Many Injured in Georgia Accidents; Fire Captain E. T. Allen Dies.

Stark tragedy blighted Christmas joy in many homes in Atlanta and the state as automobile accidents crushed the lives of eight persons and injured many others in Georgia on Christmas Day and Christmas Eve.

Three met death on Atlanta streets, two of the accidents involving hit-and-run drivers.

Fire Captain E. T. Allen, veteran fire-fighter, died at about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in Grady hospital from injuries suffered December 17 when a fire truck leaped a curb and crashed into the front yard at 154 South Gordon street, S. W.

His death marked the 70th fatal traffic accident within the city limits since the first of the year.

Those killed yesterday are Philip Sanifer, 4, of Cartersville, killed at Mangum and Magnolia streets; C. A. Brooks, 65, of 503 Lawton street, fatally injured Tuesday night by a hit-and-run driver; an unidentified negro woman who was killed at Edgewood avenue and Bell street; Henry Dixon, 5, of Pavo, Ga.; Elias Bearden, 14, of Cassville; Mrs. S. J. Kelley, 82, of Brunswick; Tommie Evans, of Savannah, and Bill Giddings, of Omega, Georgia.

The toll of deaths in Atlanta during the holiday festivities brought the number of fatalities within the city limits this year to 70, five greater than in 1934 when 65 persons were killed by automobiles.

After Family Dinner.

A merry Christmas family gathering was abruptly ended yesterday afternoon.

THOUSANDS KILLED IN CHINESE 'QUAKE'

Southern Szechuan Province Reports Shattered Villages, Heavy Toll.

CHENGDU, Szechuan Province, China, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Fragmentary reports from southern Szechuan province told today of an earthquake December 18 that shattered entire villages and caused a death toll that may reach thousands.

The remoteness and inaccessibility of the quake area made it impossible to determine the full extent of the disaster.

Primitive, mountain-dwelling Lolo tribesmen were the chief sufferers. Villages and forts near the tops of the mountain range in its extent north and south through the affected region were torn from their foundations and hurled into the valleys.

The disaster, which was a dependable under normal conditions, brought scanty, incomplete reports of towns of 100 and more families being wiped out.

Freakish landscape distortions followed the upheaval.

A mountain was split wide for a distance, a mile. The river in its upper reaches dropped five feet suddenly when the tributary Kinsha river was cut off abruptly by such a landslide.

Szechuan, a fertile interior province, is densely populated with an average of nearly 300 persons to the square mile.

Chengdu itself was shaken by the earthquake, but at the time it was impossible to learn the area immediately affected or the possible extent of the disaster.

First reports, trickling from the southern region told of houses falling

Cobb Says: Initial Egg Layer Needed

By IRVIN S. COBB.
(Copyright, 1935, by North American News, Inc.)

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Dec. 25. Whatever became of the hen which was said to have laid the first egg in time to time hatched and laid an egg with mysterious initialing on it? In my days on a county newspaper this gift fowl was a regular journalistic feature. Her output might be soft-shelled and shy a yolk, but always the cryptic writing was there.

Letters which many translated as prophesying "war." But somebody pointed out that if you read the message the other way it spelt "raw," which also seemed to cover the case pretty well.

This barnyard phenomenon died too soon. How the New Deal could use a hen capable of turning out weird alphabetical combinations and then going off and forgetting them!

Afterthought—Among all the office-seekers or office-holders who have been or may be mentioned for a presidential nomination next year—or even for vice president—you will search in vain for the name of Governor Hoffman of New Jersey.

Dies on Visit to Atlanta

JOSEPH REYNOLDS, U.S. ATTORNEY, DIES

Assistant to Attorney-General Victim of Heart Attack on Visit Here.

Joseph Shewmake Reynolds, of Washington, D. C., assistant to the attorney-general of the United States, died suddenly at noon yesterday in the home of his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Stephens Mitchell, of 1401 Peachtree street, N. E., following a heart attack.

Mr. Reynolds, who was 66, was here with his wife to visit his children and grandchildren during the Christmas holidays.

Having lived for many years both here and in Augusta, he was widely known throughout the state. He was prominent in both legal and public affairs of Georgia. He accepted an appointment to the staff of the attorney-general in Washington about a year ago, after having served as attorney for the Federal Farm Land Bank in Columbia, S. C.

Mr. Reynolds was born July 23, 1869, on the family plantation in Burke county, the son of John William and Mary Shewmake Reynolds. He lived for many years in Augusta, where he held many civic honors. He represented Richmond county in the state legislature for several terms and was solicitor-general of the Augusta circuit from 1901 to 1913.

In 1916 he moved with his family to Atlanta, where he established himself prominently in the legal profession. He was a member of the Atlanta Civitan Club and a past president of the Georgia bar association.

Sam R. Greenberg & Company, funeral director, will take the body to Atlanta, where he was buried. Details of the funeral will be announced later.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Frances H. Reynolds; a son, William Glascock Reynolds; a daughter, Mrs. Stephens Mitchell; two grandchildren, Eugene M. Mitchell II and Joseph Reynolds Mitchell, all of Atlanta; a daughter, Miss Mary Josephine Reynolds; a sister, Mrs. N. M. Marlowe Reynolds, of Augusta, and a brother, Julian H. Reynolds, of San Francisco, Cal.

LIBERTY LEAGUE HEADS
URGE NEW PROGRAM

"Constitutional" Recovery
Plank Vehemently Assails
New Deal Tactics.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25.—(P)—A 12-point "constitutional" recovery program intended to "put the government's house in order" and "check the trend toward dictatorship" was proposed today by the American Liberty League.

In outlining the program, the league vehemently attacked New Deal legislation and policies, assailed "gigantic waste" demanded a balanced budget and a "sound" monetary system. A formal league statement asserted it would continue to oppose measures "which contribute to the overthrow of our form of government."

"The United States," the league said, "has had a saturnalia of law-making. Much of it has been in conflict both with the constitution and with sound economic principles. The overturning of traditional policies and uncertainties as to the effects of new and proposed laws have been highly disturbing to business. The nation needs not only a 'breathing spell' but permanent relief from legislation of this character."

"The purpose of the congress during the new session should be to put the government's house in order. The congress should reassess its rights and prerogatives under the constitution in such fashion as definitely to check the trend toward dictatorship. It should resist all proposals which tend to

GEORGIA NEWS TOLD IN BRIEF

Steady Worker.
ACWORTH, Ga., Dec. 25.—(P)—Miss Lena Whitten spent her Christmas today as she has every other Christmas in the past 35 years—at the switchboard of the local telephone exchange. Miss Whitten has been absent from the office only once during her term of service. Then it was because she was ill.

Community Supper.
MARSHALLVILLE, Ga., Dec. 25.—(P)—Local Chamber of Commerce and garden club officials have launched plans for a community supper on New Year's Eve.

Farmers Get Money.
ABBEVILLE, Ga., Dec. 25.—(P)—Santa Claus got some help from the federal government here. Cotton checks totaling $33,000 were paid Monday to farmers of this county.

Many Turkeys Sold.
SPARTA, Ga., Dec. 25.—(P)—Hancock county farmers report an unusually large crop of turkeys sold out for Christmas trade. A community sale depleted the turkey stock and the rest were sold to truckers.

Heads Huzzar Club.
AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 25.—(P)—Dr. S. M. Levy, a former member of Troop K, Richmond Hussars in the Mexican border campaign, has been elected commander of the Last Man's Club of the unit. He succeeds Captain Edward Bryson.

New Factory Planned.
AMERICUS, Ga., Dec. 25.—(P)—The Manhattan Shirt Company, of Paterson, N. J., will establish a factory branch here January 1. Some of the machinery has been installed in a former rayon mill building and present plans call for the employment of about 150 persons.

Toys Distributed.
LAGRANGE, Ga., Dec. 25.—(P)—Hundreds of discarded toys, reported and dressed up by the city fire department, were distributed from a Christmas tree at the Troup county courthouse today and $1,000 given by the community went to help the needy.

Schools Out of Debt.
AMERICUS, Ga., Dec. 25.—(P)—E. L. Bridges, Sumter county school superintendent, said today that receipt of $8,558.55 from the state as part of the school fund allotment had lifted the county schools out of debt for the first time in seven years.

Seeks Troup Office.
LAGRANGE, Ga., Dec. 25.—(P)—Dr. Tom Rutland, LaGrange veterinarian, has qualified with the Troup county democratic executive committee as a candidate for county office.

Arrests Increase.
MARIETTA, Ga., Dec. 25.—(P)—Police Department records show more arrests for drunken driving during the past five months than in the two years previous, officers said today. The charge has been docketed against 54 motorists since August 1.

Await Appeal Decision.
SAVANNAH, Ga., Dec. 25.—(P)—A group of Bryan county voters from the Clyde school met here and decided not to contest the recent court-house removal election, but to rely on an appeal from injunction proceedings.

Lions Elect Officers.
SMITHVILLE, Ga., Dec. 25.—(P)—A recent business meeting of the Smithville Lions Club, the following officers for the new year were elected: R. I. Varner, president; C. H. Clark and M. J. Richardson, vice presidents; J. G. Pryor, secretary and treasurer; C. C. Ayers and John Moody, members of the board of directors.

Full Force at Mills.
WEST POINT, Ga., Dec. 25.—(P)—Mills of West Point Manufacturing Company are operating full time, officials report.

Three Christmas holidays will be given to employees beginning Monday. This time is to be made up by working Saturdays. Plants of the textile company are located in the Alabama town of Prattville, near Montgomery, Fairfax and Riverview.

Nicholls Names Officers.
NICHOLS, Ga., Dec. 25.—(P)—Mayor Dave Ellis and the board of councilmen were re-elected in the city election held here. The councilmen who were returned to their posts are: R. L. Varner, Warren Meeks, Frank Meeks, B. Davis and Elmo Palmer.

Canata at Oxford.
OXFORD, Ga., Dec. 25.—(P)—A program of Christmas music was given here by the Music Club, composed of 30 voices from the Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian churches of Oxford and Covington.

Under the direction of Professor V. Y. C. Eady, director of the Glee Club and Dramatic Club at Emory Junior College at Oxford and Professor B. T. Flanders as pianist, the canata, "The Christmas Messiah," by Handel, was given.

This Music Club also rendered the same program at the Sunday evening service at the Baptist church in Covington.

Worm Control Work Ends.
THOMASVILLE, Ga., Dec. 25.—(P)—With the screw worm menace having abated now that cold weather is here, the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine is bringing to a close its campaign of screw worm control program in Thomas county.

Grady Knight, county screw worm control supervisor, will terminate his services this month.

Watch Service at Church.
SAVANNAH, Ga., Dec. 25.—(P)—The Independent Presbyterian church announces it will hold a midnight watch service on the night of December 31, an annual custom. This church always watches the old year depart and plans a special program for the occasion. It will not hold services Christmas night but will pass up the Wednesday night prayer service scheduled for that evening.

Fireworks Banned.
CEDARTOWN, Ga., Dec. 25.—(P)—A ban was placed on fireworks in Cedartown by the city council, either for sale or shooting within the city limits. Fireworks shooting was a great nuisance last Christmas season, causing many merchants material loss in prospective sales, customers not wishing to brave the bedlam.

Cobb Democrats Elect.
MARIETTA, Ga., Dec. 25.—(P)—At a meeting of the Cobb county democratic committee the following new officers were elected for the year: Patton Brown, Locust Grove, chairman; H. L. (Fate) Hyde, Marietta, secretary-treasurer. Brown succeeds J. Walter Mayes and Hyde succeeds Hubert Allen.

Woodmen Name Officers.
MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Dec. 25.—(P)—Officers to serve in the Hardman camp, Woodmen of the World, have been elected as follows: T. H. Simpson, council commander; Leo Combes, advisory lieutenant; J. M. RUFUS STEELE, AUTHOR,
SUCCUMBS IN BOSTON

Was Member of Editorial
Staff of Christian Science
Monitor.

BOSTON, Dec. 25.—(P)—Rufus Steele, 58, a widely known author, producer of motion pictures, and a member of the editorial board of the Christian Science Monitor, died here today.

Since September, 1931, Steele, who was born in Hope, Ark., had written a daily front page column for the Monitor entitled "The March of the Nations," an interpretative comment on the world's news. It appeared until yesterday.

Steele began his newspaper career in Redding, Cal., where he was editor of the Free Press from 1900 to 1902. He then became a reporter on the San Francisco Chronicle, was made Sunday editor in 1904, and two years later became Sunday editor of the San Francisco Call, where he continued until 1912.

He was named to the editorial board of the Monitor last June.

Steele is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mira M. Steele, a sister, Mrs. A. A. Marlatt, of Berkeley, Cal., and a brother, C. O. Steele, of New York city. He was a member of the First Church of Christ Scientist, Boston.

The funeral will be held tomorrow.

Hollywood Chorus Beauties List
Unpardonable Sins of Men in U. S.

Male Who Eats Raw Hamburger Voted All Right by 40
of 45 Chorus Girls; Talking of Shady Past
Deplored by Group.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 25.—(P)—As a large group of girls saw it today, there are three unpardonable, and five practically unpardonable sins a man can commit.

Using a toothpick in public, talking about a shady past and drinking to excess were placed in the first group by 45 girls who voted in the poll conducted by Charles Randolph, writer. Randolph said he was gathering material for a book on marital problems.

Among other groups, he questioned the chorus girls in the motion picture, "Colleen."

The five things a man could do without annoying all the girls all the time were chewing tobacco, "handing out a fast line," eating soup noisily, wearing sleeve-bands, and ogling girls on the street.

Listing the subjects in a questionnaire, Randolph asked the dancers "would you be happy with a man—"

Yes No Ans.

Who talked about a shady . . . 0 45

Who knew all about life . . . 7 38

Who drank excessively . . . 44 1

Who wore sleeve-bands . . . 0 45

In a space on the questionnaire, the Empire Oil and Refining Company died today at his home here of a throat infection.

WAYCROSS COMPLETES
STREET PAVING WORK

WAYCROSS, Ga., Dec. 25.—Work on the paving of three blocks of Alice street, connecting Plant avenue and Albany avenue business districts, will soon be completed, after which the widening of Tebeau street will be started, it is revealed by City Manager H. M. Pafford. WPA labor has been supplied for the project.

Following the widening of Tebeau street, the preparatory work already having been done for this project, including the moving of power poles and curbs, work will be launched on the paving of Church street extension, on which street a new $55,000 shoe factory building will be located.

The paving projects are providing a use for a large quantity of paving bricks removed from Plant avenue and Albany avenue when those streets were repaved with concrete some months ago, as a federal aid project.

BROOKS FARM INCOME
SHOWS BIG INCREASE

QUITMAN, Ga., Dec. 25.—County Agent Cawley announces figures here which show that the income of Brooks county farmers in 1935 was three times more than the 1932 income. In 1932 the market value of the county's cotton crop was $176,428; in 1933 it increased to $508,624 and in 1934 it increased to $802,069, while this year it will be even higher.

The total benefit payments made to farmers covering five adjustment programs for 1935 will be $137,433 and this Mr. Cawley points out, is $10,000 more than the whole tax burden of the county.

In the five-crop programs now in force in Brooks county there are 1,336 cotton contracts, 396 tobacco contracts, 600 peanut contracts, 37 corn contracts and 60 syrup contracts. Farmers are almost unanimous in their recognition of the fact that this program of controlled agriculture has rebalanced their farm income and given them a position of safety they have not had before. Out of the less than a score who voted recently against the farm program all were farmers who for some reason had not been able to qualify to sign contracts.

Shorts Become Issue.

Mrs. C. S. Smallman has been appointed by the All-England Hockey Association to decide when a divided skirt becomes shorts. This point has recently led to much ill feeling because of attempted censorship.

'Blue Law' Legislation Hopeless, Says Writer in 'The South Today'

Those seeking to stem the rising tide of rebellion against Sunday-observance legislation have undertaken a well-nigh hopeless task, thinks John M. Gibson, North Carolina editor, in his contribution to next Sunday's "The South Today."

becoming more and more strongly opposed to such legislation. Thus does Mr. Gibson conclude one of the most interesting surveys of Sunday-observance laws in the past, present, and future that has been undertaken in many years. Writing with the humorous pen that has guided him to prominence through the columns of many nationally famous magazines, Mr. Gibson trends lightly over the laws of the southern colonies, dwells humorously on the strict and forbidding legislation of the Victorians, makes profound observations on our present-day legislation, and predicts with keen insight the future of Sunday-observance laws in the various states. Innumerable and cleverly related anecdotes enliven this scholarly survey of the ups and downs of the blue laws in the southern states.

MAGAZINE PUBLISHER ARRESTED IN JAPAN

NEW YORK, Dec. 25.—(AP)—The New York office of the Far East magazine, published in Shanghai, announced today the receipt of a cablegram saying Dr. Yen C. Chih, the publication's editor, had been "arrested" by Japanese and 11,000 copies of the current issue confiscated. The announcement said the issue contained an attack on Japan's latest conquest of North China. Chih also is president of the Federation of Chinese Industries.

Simple Sincerity of Worship Found In Brazilian Church, Far From Town

This is the 56th of a series of articles on South American travel by the Rev. Henry Edward Russell, of McDonough, Ga.—Editor's Note.

PERDIZES, Brazil, Nov. 6.—No doubt many of you who read this went to church last Sunday. I went to church too, but never before have I attended a service or a church just as this one. To begin with it was 75 miles from the nearest railroad, far from any town or village, placed in a semi-cleared spot in a grove of palm and other tropical trees. The building itself is different from any that I have ever seen used for worship. It was made like a long Indian hut. The walls were of bamboo poles placed upright and held together by cross pieces tied with vines. The pews were benches of bamboo poles. Five of them were lashed together and supported by a cross piece placed on four stobs that had been driven into the dirt floor. This floor was of red clay packed hard. The pulpit—it was a crude table with long legs that rested unsteadily on the packed clay. The roof was of palm leaves and the eaves had been clipped back gently like a little girl's hair and the bright sunlight filtered through the spaces between the bamboo poles.

Simple Sincerity in Worship. How aptly the simplicity of the building fitted the simple sincerity of the worship! It was strange. It was different. There was no musical instrument except the breeze swayed palms that bowed before the wind and the heat bearable. The people who had come to worship had built the church and it was a fitting expression of their souls. They were simple, rustic and sincere. Their closeness to nature seems to give them an intimacy with their Creator that all men do not share. Millions went to church Sunday as they have each Sunday since we began to number our calendars Anno Domini but this group would have fitted into either of these 20 centuries of time.

Besides their faith there was little to show their connection with the world as we know it. The chief reminder of the outside world other than certain articles of clothing and printed pages was a staple keg that bore the mark of Bethlehem steel. I thought it strange that even a barrel there should have the name of the birth place of Jesus stamped upon it. Of course the name of a steel company had never been associated with Bethlehem of Judea before. These Portuguese speaking people of the interior could not read the trade mark of the American steel company but they knew what happened in Bethlehem of Judea. That was their reason for being at church.

Distance Shrinks. I do not know how far it was to the next congregation except that it was a long way. But there under that thatched roof I felt that distance did not matter. People were going to the same reason and even though I could not speak nor understand more than a scattered word of the service the heart beat of silence was deeply felt. Worship in all lands and in all times passed before the mind's eye. Times from ancient and modern songs of praise were sung without the aid of musical instrument, prayers were spoken that seemed to come from the soul as well as from the lips and periods of silence spoke—man was still to know that God is God.

A line—"mystic sweet communion through all the earth," occurred and recurred. Yes, it was mystic, it was sweet, it was communion and it was through all the earth.

STOCK TRADERS SEEK TO EXPAND ACTIVITY

Professional Dealers Interested in Other Exchanges for Extending Facilities.

NEW YORK, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Some of Wall Street's professional stock market traders are showing increasing interest in facilities of distant exchanges for expansion of their activities.

In their inspections they have concentrated on the San Francisco stock exchange and some of the world markets abroad, looking for satisfactory emergency outlets for their speculative work.

The quest has been inspired by some recent news happenings after trading hours in New York which, because of their bullish or bearish import, occasioned sharp vibrations immediately in some of the distant markets still open because located in different time zones.

The quick-on-the-trigger type of trader does not relish these situations. When important news breaks he wants immediately a place where he can buy or sell. He feels thwarted if he had to wait for the opening of the New York stock exchange on the morrow.

Stagger System. Even if the outside exchanges have decided limitations as regards risk requirements it is comforting to the Wall Street trader to know that world security markets operate on a stagger system through the 24 hours.

This is not because of their desire to afford opportunity for continuous speculative dealings, but by the circumstance of a physically revolving world and varying time zones.

Thus in theory, anyway, a New York trader could spend an entire day and a goodly part of the night, hopping from one exchange to another in pursuit of profits.

He could switch from the New York market when it closes at 3 p. m. eastern standard time, to the San Francisco stock exchange. There he would operate for another three hours in certain of the standard issues of the New York list.

After-Dinner Hiccup. After dinner there would be a hiccup, but if the trader got a notion at say 2 a. m. to enter buying or selling orders, he could, if properly accredited, transmit them by trans-Atlantic telephone to Zurich, Switzerland, where bankers would accept them for later execution on the Zurich stock exchange, where a few American issues are traded.

A couple of hours later he could start trading on the London and Amsterdam stock exchanges and by the time these closed the New York exchange would be well started on a new day.

Trading hours of the principal security exchanges in the eastern half of the country, including those in the central time zone, are synchronized. It will thus call for no alteration of the present system when Chicago adopts eastern standard time next year.

G. O. P. IN N. Y. TO MEET TO BACK SEN. BORAH

NEW YORK, Dec. 25.—(AP)—A meeting of prominent New York state republicans will be held here early in January with the avowed purpose of organizing sentiment for the republican presidential nomination of Senator William E. Borah.

Representative Hamilton Fish, who called the meeting, said last night it would be held about January 4. He refused to name those invited.

ACCORDION IS STOLEN FROM BLIND MUSICIAN

MOLINE, Ill., Dec. 25.—(AP)—A Christmas Eve thief deprived Earl Gilmore, blind musician, of his only means of livelihood. Gilmore placed his accordion on his stool outside a store while he did some Yule shopping. When he came back, instrument and stool were gone.

Kidnap Reminders Haunt Milne at Yule Dinner

WOODSTOCK, N. Y., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Caleb Milne IV, recovering from effects of his kidnapping 12 days ago, ate Christmas dinner in the Yuletide safety of his home today, but reminders of his experience were plentiful.

Federal agents detailed to the home during investigation of the kidnapping augmented the circle about the turkey dinner table. Caleb still remained indoors, a condition imposed since his return home.

BUS CRASH INQUEST TO BE HELD TODAY

Passenger '13' of Hopewell Tragedy Awaits Identification at Morgue.

HOPEWELL, Va., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Cold in death, passenger "13" on the ill-fated Greyhound bus which plunged into the Appomattox river Sunday, spent Christmas Day on an undertaker's cot as Hopewell officials lined up witnesses for the inquest tomorrow into the tragedy.

Christmas gifts in her possession provided the only clue to the identity of the dark-complexioned young woman of about 25 years of age. Certain of these were addressed to a family named "Page" at Chase City, Va., and members of that family were to come here today to view the body, officials and undertakers said.

Principal witnesses at the inquest at 11:30 tomorrow morning will be Lucy McNeil, bridge-tender who saw the big machine plunge through an open draw of the bridge; Ben Alexander, captain of a tugboat passing at the time; City Manager Guy Ansell and Commonwealth's Attorney John Goodman.

The two city officials will testify as to the condition of the bus when it was hoisted from beneath the water's surface. They have said that the brakes were set.

All but three of the 14 bodies salvaged after the wreck had been hauled from here or buried by Christmas Day. Those of Mrs. T. H. Fairfax and Miss Lillian Fairfax, of Superior, Wis., definitely identified here last night by a New York kinsman, were sent to Wisconsin today.

Chief George Anderson said a description of Ellen Basie, formerly a resident of New York City, Va., missing by Newark (N. J.) police, tallies in some respects with that of passenger "13."

MAVERICK PROPOSES BIG BUILDING PROGRAM

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Representative Maury Maverick, democrat, Texas, said today he would urge congress to launch gigantic and permanent home building and soil conservation programs to provide steady employment for approximately 5,000,000 persons.

"I expect to introduce one or more bills for the purpose of having on a gigantic effort made at conservation and construction," Maverick said.

"We must have homes which cost down to $1,000. In warmer climates a house and lot ought to be purchased for $1,000 to $1,500. The Federal Housing Act has not solved this problem."

SMALL TOWN GIRL

BY BEN AMES WILLIAMS

THE STORY THIS FAR.
Kay Brannan has entered Wellesley and there become part of an exciting social whirl but to her horror she discovers that she has an inherited taste for liquor. She has a great deal of Chick Reason, advising man. When her mother writes that she must leave Wellesley because of financial troubles, Kay goes to Chick for a job as his assistant. She is determined never to return to Carrol and marry someone dull, as her sister Emily is doing. She gains a new trick out of Kay, cousin to Bob Dab, handsome and reckless, whom she has never encountered. Now she is to meet Dane Ripley, with whom Emily had been in love. Reversely, Kay decides that she will win him, then throw him over. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XVI.

"Half-time Kay protested. "I've worked till midnight many a night!" "But many a morning you've come in so tired and sleepy you weren't good for much before noon," he told her. "Kay, you can't run around till the small hours with a lot of irresponsible kids, and then be bright and shining at your desk at nine."

"I suppose you'd have me tucked in at 7 every night!" she exclaimed resentfully. "I hesitated, and his eyes shadowed. "I didn't mean to start an argument with you, Kay," he said, more stiffly. "What you do at night is nothing to us, none of our business. But the firm has a right to expect that you'll be on hand in the morning, fit and ready for the day's work."

"I haven't been late a dozen times this year," Kay told her, "you were an investment with us. On a cost-accounting basis, it's an expensive proposition to take a person who knows nothing of the business and show her how the wheels go round."

Kay's lips stiffened. She laughed unhappily. "This is a joke on me," she said. "Asking for a raise when you feel this way."

He nodded. "As a matter of fact," he said, "Mr. Gould has twice urged that I let you go."

She came to her feet, white with angry pride, sick with despair. "You don't need to keep me if I'm not earning my salary," she exclaimed. "I'll quit!"

"I don't want you to quit, Kay," Chick told her, in a friendly tone. "I want you to knowable down and earn what we pay you. You could earn a great deal more; and when you do, we'll be glad to pay it."

She shook her head, in control of her emotions now. "Thank you very much," she said. "But I'm resigning! I didn't realize that I was such a burn. You've been very kind! Good-by."

And she turned toward the door. He stood up quickly. "Wait, Kay," he urged. "Don't be—stiff-necked—I'm trying to help you."

She opened the door, and he caught her arm. "You're wrong to walk out like this," he insisted. "What will you do?"

AUNT HET

BY ROBERT QUILLER.

She moved now at top speed, in haste to be away. It was clear to her that she could not, just now, face Genevieve.

In the morning Kay woke early, but lay pretending sleep. She heard Genevieve presently rouse and rise. Later the other girl said cheerfully: "Wake up, Kay! Stir your stumps! You're due at the office in 40 minutes."

Kay mumbled as though still asleep: "Got a day off. Don't bother me." And to Genevieve's incredulous questions she responded so grudgingly and drowsily that in the end the other departed, left her there alone.

When Genevieve was surely gone, Kay opened her eyes and lay in long thought. Later, wearily, she rose. At a few minutes past 11 when Dane blew his horn at the door, she had been ready for half an hour. Dane came racing up, as much for the kiss he seized on seeing her as to carry down her bags. She protested gayly: "Heavens, don't tumble me so, Dane! Here I had every single hair in place, the hat just exactly right!"

"We're driving with the top down anyway," he assured her. "The wind would do the damage if I didn't, so it might as well be me, Ready?"

He found in her, when they were on the road, some new quality: a gaiety, a cheerfulness, a spiritfulness. Kay had never worn heretofore. She was usually, like so many small persons, rather composed and dignified; but today she pulled off her small hat and let the wind blow in her hair, and her cheeks were bright. She tilted the windshield so that they took the warm June air in their faces; and once he laughed aloud and swung into a wood road off the main highway.

She flamed at him, in a sudden blind fury. "Take your hands off me, and let me go!"

And she twitched away from him, through the door. She caught it, jerked it shut after her with a resounding crash. She fairly ran along the office corridor to get her hat, to be gone.

On the street outside, she walked with head high and cheeks blazing; but her eyes burned with unshed tears, and her heart was sick. She walked for she knew not how long a time, in a dead despair; came home at last with lagging feet and drooping shoulders. She hurried to her room as though she raced for sanctuary. Genevieve would not be there; she could be alone.

She found a note pinned to the door. It read: "Mr. Ripley telephoned. He's at the Copley. He wants you to call him."

Kay stood for only an instant, in the briefest hesitation. Then she darted down the stairs to the telephone. Dane, she cried, when she heard his voice in it.

"Kay! Where are you? When can I see you?" "Down to the boat races! I told you I wouldn't give up. Will you come peacefully, or must I kidnap you?"

Her heart was pounding. "Well—I'd hate being kidnapped. Let's have dinner together and make plans."

"Can't tonight. When do we start?" "Can you get away tomorrow morning, about 12? Make Chick let you off, and we'll drive down."

Kay's eyes filled with scalding tears. "Call for me here," she said, carefully lest her voice break.

"You'll miss it for the world," said Kay, and dashed the receiver back on the hook and fled blindly up the stairs, her eyes brimming. She threw herself across the couch that was her bed and lay there very small, shaken with sobs.

But after a little she sat up and dried her tears and looked at her watch. Almost 5. Genevieve would presently be here.

Kay looked at herself in the mirror in a long appraisal. "You've got to be lovely tomorrow, Kay," she whispered to her own image there. "Your last chance, you know."

She was to dine that night with that young man named Murfin, who had kissed her so clumsily long ago while she was still at Wellesley. She ran down to telephone him not to come here for her; promised to meet him at the York Cellar where the Russians were. Then up the stairs again and heading into her second-best frock. The best must be saved to dazzle Dane.

She moved now at top speed, in haste to be away. It was clear to her that she could not, just now, face Genevieve.

In the morning Kay woke early, but lay pretending sleep. She heard Genevieve presently rouse and rise. Later the other girl said cheerfully: "Wake up, Kay! Stir your stumps! You're due at the office in 40 minutes."

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

INDIA'S FAKIRS.

Some persons think of India as a land of mystery and magic. This is due, in part, to the many men in India who perform magic tricks. Often they do their work in a dark, alone, side a street, or in some other open place. They do not need a stage. Right before the eyes of people, they make a mango tree grow, or put a boy into a basket over a river, and once he laughed aloud and swung into a wood road off the main highway.

but the fakirs obtain liquid through fruits and other food which they eat. As a rule the fakira beg for a living. They have the strange belief that they are helping their spirits by hurting their bodies. Many who look at them are filled with pity, and give them coins. Some, but not all, of the fakirs are greedy for money and when they obtain enough they stop hurting their bodies and begin "enjoying life."

The fakirs who hurt themselves are strange sights, but I think the ones who perform magic tricks are more interesting. One of their famous deeds is to let themselves be buried alive.

A hole is dug in the ground, and a Hindu fakir steps into a coffin. Down, down the coffin is lowered, and then it is covered with dirt. People may keep watch over the "grave," if they like, but they will see no one come by day or night to let the Hindu out.

It seems a marvel when the Hindu is brought forth alive a week or so later, where all can see him "rise from the grave."

We are told that the deed is explained in this way: Before the people are called together, a tunnel is cut from a small building, perhaps a hundred yards away and hidden by trees. The tunnel leads to the place where the hole is to be dug. A bit of wall of earth is left between the hole and the end of the tunnel. The Hindu pushes out a movable end-piece in the coffin, breaks through the wall, the tunnel, and crawls to the small building.

When the time arrives for him to come forth alive, the "buried man" enters the tunnel and goes back to the coffin. Then he is raised to the ground above.

Society Dons Smart Riding Togs To Attend Auspicious Occasion

By Sally Forth.

THE opening of the Judy King stables on Mount Perrin road is still the talk of the town, and society is clinging to the memory of one of the smartest out-of-door events ever given this side of the Mason-Dixon line. A huge bonfire, burning in its best out-of-doors manner, was a welcome and a comfortable feature of the crisp and cold afternoon, and the natural setting and surroundings, together with the view of the nearby stables, gave the entire tableaux a smart and colorful aspect. Especially attractive and in keeping with the auspicious occasion were the smart riding habits worn by the guests.

John K. Ottley, the well-known sportsman, was attired in riding costume worn with a bright red vest which lent a touch of an English hunting scene. Miss King, of course, wore riding clothes, her grey habit being worn with a black and white checked shirt and a gay red fez. Among attractive visitors present was Gertrude Jones, of Fort Wayne, Ind., the guest of the Eugene Harringtons, who looked very snappy and sporty in her English topcoat and wool muffler. Mrs. Ben Smith, who with her husband, was a co-host with her sister, Judy, at the housewarming, looked unusually stunning in a gray wool suit.

Harriett McCullough Donaldson was the first to sign the guest book, which in days to come will record the names of many socialites who will visit the attractive place. Harriett wrote her happy greeting in the form of a "cheerio to Jane, Judy and Ben!" She was left to Robert F. Maddox, however, to be the first guest to wax poetical on the occasion, this prominent banker penning the following verse, which he announced was written on the spur of the moment: "It would be tacky to say, we've had a fine day, and your praises we sing, for the fine show in the ring!"

Wallace Sheffield, of Americus, who was with his sister, Mrs. Carl Ramspeck, found much to say in favor of the spicy cheese served, and Homer Thompson elected himself leader for a series of musical numbers sung during the afternoon.

The Harold Rogers, after many delays, finally left, but announcing that their departure was only hastened by the fact that their daughter, Beverly, was arriving that very afternoon from the University of Wisconsin for the holidays.

LOVELY little fairies hobnobbed with May West, Ed Wynn, a policeman, Pierrot and Pierrette and other masqueraders at the Christmas neighborhood party given by Cecile Maddox. The affair took place at the Pace's Ferry road residence of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Maddox, grandparents of the little hostess. The house was ablaze with Yuletide decorations and a tree trimmed with tinsel and varicolored lights was laden with gifts which were presented to the children by a real Santa Claus.

Lillian Grant impersonated the rotund Ma West, and wore a black satin dress offset with a red silk shawl edged with fringe. Her blond curls were held in place with a rhinestone bandeau and a strand of pearls encircled her throat. May Haverly flitted about in true fairy-like manner, dressed in white tulle. Her fairy wings were sprinkled with silver stars, four white gardenias ornamented the front of the tight-fitting bodice, and she wore gardenias in her hair.

John W. Grant Jr. policed the party as befitted a dignified policeman. His blue uniform was

Personals

Miss Helen Diggs, of Washington, D. C., is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. George Muse, at her home on Lafayette drive, Ansel Park. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Diggs, and her mother is the former Miss Alice Muse. Miss Diggs is an attractive member of the school-girl contingent of society.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Graves leave today by motor for Miami, Fla., where they will spend two weeks.

Alva P. McCrary is recovering from a severe illness at his home on Peachtree street.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore D. Bagley, of Jacksonville, Fla., is spending the holidays with their mother, Mrs. Mary M. Elliott, on Oxford place.

Mr. and Mrs. Elton Tingle announce the birth of a daughter on December 19 at Emory University hospital, whom they have named Sara Gail. Mrs. Tingle is the former Miss Sara Randall, of Griffin.

Trimmed with brass buttons and blue braid, Allison Thornwell Jr. portrayed Ed Wynn, and his long black trousers and red satin shirt were topped with a fireman's red helmet, set upon his head in jaunty style.

Ann Arkwright was dressed in canary-colored tulle and ornamented with gold stars, and a single gold star was worn in her golden tresses. Shiny gold ribbons decorated wild gold stars further beautified the fairy costume.

ANOTHER heir was expected by a prominent young couple—prominent in southern society as well as in eastern circles. The new arrival would add a fourth to the trio of attractive young children, who, to be very truthful, had put in appearance upon this mundane sphere rather rapidly. The proud parents have been married less than five years.

Nevertheless, the lovely young mother was thrilled over the anticipated mother. Accordingly, she wrote to a beloved aunt in the east, expressing her joy over the coming event.

The aunt, an elderly lady who expresses herself rather freely and also rather forcibly on occasion, was surprised and somewhat dismayed. She did not wait to write her niece. She sent her a day letter—after this cryptic fashion.

"Letter received. Congratulations," the message began. And then there appeared the word "stop." In fact a whole series of "stop"—47 of them to be exact. To finish out the 50 words allowed in a day letter, you know.

Escorts will include Charlie Roberts, Weyman Smith, Archie Jones, Pete Houston, Albert Allen, Audley Sears, Alvin Williams, Ed Henson, J. D. Bell, L. C. Jones, Bob Anderson, Henry Cates, S. E. Johnson and others.

A marriage marked by unusual beauty was that of Miss Grace Evelyn Houston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Jenson, of Decatur, to Weyman Hampton Braswell Jr., also of Decatur, which was solemnized yesterday morning at 10 o'clock at St. Luke's Episcopal church, with Rev. John Moore Walker performing the ceremony in the presence of relatives and friends.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Thomas Cleveland Braswell, of Marietta, was her matron of honor and she was gowning in a green crepe model with which she wore green hat and accessories in matching tones. Her shoulder cluster was formed of gardenias. Judge Augustus M. Roan acted as best man.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mr. J. D. Jenson, who wore an ensemble of olive green wool with blouse of gold lame, and her accessories were of brown. Complete costume was a shoulder bouquet of bronze-shaded flowers. Mrs. Jenson, mother of the bride, wore a gown of ash-of-rose crepe with a shoulder bouquet of roses. Mrs. Braswell, mother of the bride, wore black crepe with a shoulder spray of roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Jenson were hosts at a reception for the bride and groom at their home on Clairmont avenue from 2 to 4 o'clock after which the bride and bridegroom left for a brief motor trip.

College Athletic Leaders Open Annual Meeting Today

REBA MORTON ISH WILLIAMS IN SWIM MEET

Aquatic Stars Preparing for Contest at Birmingham Club.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 25.—(UP)—Numerous Birmingham swimmers are earnestly preparing themselves in shape for the south's first swimming meet of the season to be held at the Birmingham Athletic Club here January 17-18.

Reba Morton, Knoxville, Tenn., star swimmer who holds several southern and southeastern records, has signified her intention of attending the meet. Doris Holbrook, Atlanta, holder of southern and mid-Atlantic records for the 100-yard breaststroke, will compete.

Ish Williams, Rome, Ga., candidate for an Olympic berth as a backstroke swimmer, will bring a team to compete in the meet, Holmes said.

The swimming teams of Alabama Polytechnic Institute (Auburn) and Georgia Tech will enter the meet.

Nadine McCullough, youthful breaststroke contender, will represent Jacksonville, Fla. Other teams have tentatively accepted an invitation to compete in a 440-yard relay race.

RECORD CROWD AT SANTA ANITA

SANTA ANITA PARK, LOS ANGELES, Dec. 25.—(AP)—The largest crowd ever to see a horse racing program in California, approximately 45,000, witnessed the inaugural events of the second Santa Anita winter meeting today.

The throng included some leading figures in Hollywood's motion picture colony.

The silks of Clark Gable were represented by Beverly Hills in the third race.

The first race was so close that it was necessary for the judges to await the photograph of the finish before declaring Jimmie the winner by a whisker over Lady Florine.

Top Row Sets New Track Record.

SANTA ANITA PARK, Los Angeles, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Top Row, a stirring stretch drive, set a new track record here today to win the second running of the Christmas stakes, a mile in 1 minute 33.4 seconds. He was a half length ahead of Ariel Cross with Mary third.

The old record of 1:36.35 was set February 13 in the inaugural meeting by Swooping Light the day he beat Equinox. A. A. Baron's winner, the little son of Peanuts, packing top weight of 124 pounds, paid $4.80 to win, $4.20 to place and $3.40 to show.

Ariel Cross, owned by H. C. Match, paid $10.80 and $5.80, while Mary, from the stables of Childs & Walker, paid $10.80 and $5.80.

Top Row, a former selling plate, never was far off the pace.

The race was worth $4,000 to Baron, who has realized more than $100,000 since he bought the horse for $15,000 a year ago.

ALL-STAR TEAMS WORK ON XMAS

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Wait, wait, wait, the Christmas day scrum of the Eastern squad at Berkeley and the injury probably will keep him on the bench during the annual East-West football game here New Year's day.

Dick Crayne, University of Iowa fullback, will be shifted to Crayne's post at right half. Coach's Andy Kerr and Dick Hanley said.

At Palo Alto, the fourth minor casualty occurred for the west team when Al Shipe, University of Washington guard, pulled a left leg muscle.

Coaches Percy Lowry and Orin Holmberg, of the west team, turned Russ Lott, University of San Francisco 212-pound tackle, into a running guard and appeared pleased with the result.

The eastern first string backfield listed R. Smith, Alabama, quarter back; Crayne, Iowa, left half; Crayne, Northwestern, right half; and Boise, Minnesota, fullback.

Tampa Is Beaten By Lebanon Valley

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 25.—(AP)—The Lebanon Valley "Flying Dutchmen," of Annville, Pa., today broke the Tampa University's winning string of Christmas day football victories by defeating the Spartans here this afternoon, 6-0, in the third annual event.

The visitors scored a touchdown in the first period, but neither side was able to cross the orange goal line thereafter.

A bright sun tempered the chill wind that blew across Plant field and provided the most ideal football weather of the season that ended today for both teams.

The game was sponsored by the Junior League, the proceeds to go to a home here for tubercular children.

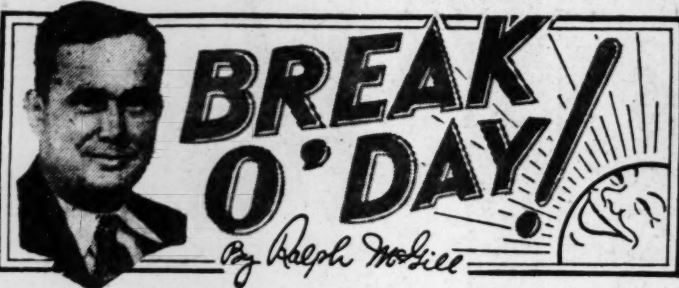

Four Square Class Seeks Class Contests

The Four Square Class basketball team of the Druid Hills Baptist Sunday school would like to arrange games with out-of-town teams within 100 miles of Atlanta.

The team is open for engagements any night, except Wednesday, during the balance of the season. Please communicate with Grayson Stradley, 1015 Adair avenue, N. E., Hemlock 0819 J.

SMITH SCORES DOUBLE.

Jackie George Smith scored a double at the Fairgrounds. In the fourth race he won with A. Castin's Luggan Luggan and then he rode R. A. Cowan's Julia Grant to victory in the fifth.

BREAK O'DAY!

Well, it was a swell Christmas. Wasn't it?

But for a while, though, it looked as if it was moving to a dismal close.

The gifts kept arriving. But one by one they were checked off and not a tie had arrived. It grew late. There were lots of bundles, resplendent in cellophane and tissue. (How did we EVER have Christmas without cellophane?) There were some amazing gifts but no tie.

I began to be sorry Aunt Louise had learned, after all these years, that people DIDN'T wear the sort of ties she used to select. Now she is learning about Sox. But the inevitable fact stared one slap in the face. There was not one of those long, thin boxes in the lot.

Darkness drew on. There were mysterious bundles, full of interest and delightful anticipation which were, on the morrow, to deliver up all sorts of pleasant gifts.

But Christmas Eve without a tie isn't Christmas.

No matter how deep the gifts were heaped about the tree it seemed to shriek the fact no tie was present.

The little woman and I were holding hands and staring desolately at where the fireplace would have been if we'd had a fireplace.

Suddenly there was a peal of the bell. The dog barked. And at the door there was a special delivery boy.

"A package," he began.

But he got no further. We had spied it and snatched it from his hands. It was one of those thin, narrow boxes. Christmas was looking up.

The fronds of the pine tree lifted in pride. The dog sniffed the package contentedly. Life went on again.

Christmas was complete. When the packages were opened yesterday there was a tie.

Some perfectly HEARTLESS clerk had sold it to Aunt Sadie. But it was Christmas. There were cigars, tall glasses and squat ones which seem to beckon; socks, books, handkerchiefs, games and this and that. And Aunt Sadie's tie.

THE TOURNAMENT OF ROSES.

It is less than a week now until the Tournament of Roses at Pasadena in the morning and the Rose Bowl football game in the afternoon between the Stanfords and the people from S. M. U.

That Tournament of Roses parade is a gorgeous thing. This year I hope the weather is not so brisk.

Last year the cute young things riding the various floats had a difficult time of it. No matter if they are representing Liberty or the spirit of Pomona valley, they manage to wear very few clothes. And last year they were wearing mostly flowers and goose pimples. It was very brisk.

They can do more things with flowers out there than has been dreamed of in our section. It is quite a spectacle and attracts the largest crowd of the year. A million people see it every January 1.

I see by the papers this year that the Rose Bowl actually will have some roses this season. In past years they merely stuck roses here and there about the stadium. But one of the government agencies lent some money to the Rose Bowl people and they have planted themselves some roses. This prevents embarrassing questions.

The Rose Bowl game should have taken out a copyright on their idea. It was a good one. And the fact it has so many imitators after almost 40 years is becoming a little annoying.

A few more years of all these bowls and the various conferences very properly will rule out post-season games as the Big Ten and the sacred trio of Yale, Harvard and Princeton already have done.

I hope they leave the Rose Bowl. It has built up almost half a century of tradition and occupies a permanent place.

STANFORD'S POWER.

It would be interesting to know just what sort of lads play the tackle positions for the Mustangs of S. M. U. It is very important indeed to know if they can take it. All afternoon.

Because the Stanfords unload more power at the tackle positions, just outside them and inside them, than any other team in football. They have the material suited for that sort of football.

When Pop Warner left the coast after taking several drubbings through several seasons, he gave as his expert opinion that Stanford no longer got the material and couldn't compete. Tiny Ethelbert Thornhill took the material Pop Warner left and has won three consecutive coast assignments to the Rose Bowl.

The boys had learned how to stop Pop Warner's attack. They charged the tackles straight through. Or waited at the line.

Tiny Thornhill changed his style of attack a bit. If the tackles showed enthusiasm for charging his men let them through and cross-blocked them the while delayed spinners went flying by the cross-blocked tackles. And if they waited there was a spinner through center with the guards moved out.

He had the men suited for this sort of football and he developed the finest power attack football has seen in the past three seasons.

It isn't a very smart team. It never changed its pass defense against Alabama last year even when it was apparent what Alabama was doing and how. But it can pour power at the tackles.

Alabama's tackles and guards rendered yeoman service last year and even so there were times when they were being tossed about very rudely indeed. The Stanfords can really pour the power at any designated spot. It requires passes—good passes—to beat the Stanfords. No team can stay in there and swap power with them and win.

A CHANCE FOR DIXIE FOOTBALL.

Two southern teams and one from the southwest are engaged in filling the football bowls on next Wednesday. It is an excellent chance for them to make a great showing.

Ed Walker's fine Mississippi eleven plays Catholic University in Miami's Orange Bowl while L. S. U. meets T. C. U. in the Sugar Bowl. And the Mustangs, of course, are playing the Stanfords.

If our brave lads from the cotton belts can polish off their opponents in the Orange and Sugar Bowls while the Mustangs pass their way to victory over Stanford, we will know for a certainty where the best football teams were located in 1935.

Carter Barron, Golden Home for Holidays

Carter Barron, former Georgia Tech football star and one of the country's outstanding theater executives, now in Washington, D. C., spent Christmas with his parents at Clarksville, Ga. Carter has only a limited time away from his duties at Washington and will have to pass up the opportunity to visit his many friends here.

Jim Golden, former Atlanta, also was a visitor in the city. Wednesday, Golden is now stationed in Washington, D. C., and will be in the city several days.

INDIANS HEAD FOR PASADENA AND BOWL GAME

Coach Thornhill Glad Stanford Team Will Play as 'Under Dog.'

PALO ALTO, Cal., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Stanford's main football contingent headed for Pasadena tonight prepared either to break a Rose Bowl jinx with a victory over Southern Methodist or go down fighting the greatest New Year's Day battle of the last three seasons.

Twenty-one players, who had remained in this section to spend Christmas at home, and Head Coach C. E. "Tiny" Thornhill broke camp.

At Pasadena they will join 17 team-mates who left yesterday for their homes in southern California.

For most of the players it was the third successive trip to take part in the big yearly classic. Two preceding efforts to prove western football is superior to the brand played elsewhere failed. Instead of being up as the favorite a week from today, Stanford will find itself the short end.

The setup is exactly what Coach Thornhill hoped for. As "underdog," he confidently believes his team will function in championship form.

Texas enthusiasts have helped the cause by continued predictions that Southern Methodist would win by margins varying from one to 40 points.

From all indications, the Stanford players have acquired a mental outlook in which every individual has accepted the game as a personal challenge.

The aerial trickery of Southern Methodist will be met by counter strategy—a combined ground and air attack which has been perfected since the close of the regular season last month.

Blasts at the center of the line will be one of Stanford's answers to the Texas team's practice of fading out its guards on the open type of play.

Thornhill believes his team has "a very good chance" to win this game. He says the players are in a better frame of mind than the preceding two years when they lost to Alabama and Columbia.

S. M. U. To Leave For Pasadena Today.

DALLAS, Texas, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Southern Methodist's football Mustangs will leave tomorrow for Pasadena and the Rose Bowl game with Stanford New Year's Day.

Conches Madison Bell, Vic Hurt and Charlie Trigg sent the Mustangs sipping through a final drill today while 100 fans shivered on the side lines.

Harry Shuford, blocking and charging fullback who was injured Armistice Day when Southern Methodist whipped U. C. L. A. at Los Angeles, is definitely ready. Shuford is the blur for Robert Wilson, elusive All-American halfback.

J. C. Wetzel, star guard who was injured the last few weeks of the regular season, also is a definite starter.

Catholic Squad To Work Indoors.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Snow blanketing Catholic University stadium spurred Coach A. J. Bergman today to decide on at least two strenuous indoor practice sessions indoors before he starts his gridders tomorrow for the New Year's Day football battle with Mississippi at Miami's Orange Bowl.

Bergman said he had arranged for the team to work out on the dirt floor of the Riding and Hunt Club here. He plans to put the Cardinals through practice drills both tomorrow morning and afternoon.

A Christmas holiday elbowed all practice off the schedule today.

Rose Bowl Requests Mount to 300,000.

PALO ALTO, Cal., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Graduate Manager Alfred R. Masters of Stanford, said today he "could have sold 300,000 tickets" for the New Year's Day Rose Bowl game with Southern Methodist University.

"We sold out the $4.75 seats in five days and had on hand applications, accompanied by the money, for 200,000 tickets," he said.

"I believe we could have disposed of at least 300,000 tickets. Financially, it is the biggest football game we ever witnessed."

To prevent possible attempts to rush the gates, 100 policemen, backed up by the Pasadena fire department, will guard the entrances.

JUNIOR SINGLES TOURNAMENT OPENS

NEW YORK, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Play in the national junior and boys' singles tennis championships starts tomorrow. Both tournaments will end New Year's day.

Douglas Stevenson, of Northwestern University, is the top-seeded player in the junior tournament. He received a first-round bye and in the second round will be opposed by William Cullen Fay, of New York.

The top-seeded performer in the boys' championship is Isadore Bellia, of Central High school, Philadelphia. His first-round opponent will be furnished by Jack Townsend, of the Lawrenceville (N. J.) school.

Al Ettore Is Given Decision Over Smith

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Al Ettore, up-and-coming Philadelphia heavyweight, outpointed Ford Smith, cowboy puncher from Montana, in 10 rounds at the arena today.

Ettore made it anything but a "easy" fight for the "Red Hot" contender from the west, winning about as he pleased and staying on the aggressive from start to finish.

The blond Philadelphia, who scaled 191, giving away 19 pounds to his opponent, was ahead in every round except the ninth, and even in that frame he stayed even. Six thousand fans turned out for the holiday card.

Smith's gameness featured his side of the battle. At times his knees buckled from the power behind Ettore's barrage. His lips were cut, but he never stopped trying, although his efforts were to little avail.

He confined his attack mainly to the body, occasionally shooting a right-hand uppercut in close.

Leroy Haynes, husky Los Angeles heavyweight, stopped Willie Reddish, Philadelphia, in the second round of the semi-final. Haynes scaled 197, seven pounds more than Reddish.

L. S. U. VETERANS EYE COURT TITLE

Louisiana State tonight loomed as a menace to the "Big Three" of S. E. C. basketball as Tiger cage stars gave indication they may be as formidable as the grid team which captured the conference title this fall.

With a team studded with veterans and boasting a mountainous center, Georgia invaded the southern end of the conference to meet sudden defeat at the hands of the Bayou Tigers, 46 to 34.

The defeat added to a trouncing already administered by Tulane.

Meanwhile, however, Kentucky's Wildcats stamped themselves as potent forces in the conference by coasting to an easy victory over Pittsburgh University, 35 to 17.

The Wildcats ran up a 17-point margin before their stellar defense yielded a single point. They coasted through the second half, content merely to maintain a safe margin with substitutes doing the work.

Although L. S. U. last year shared conference cage honors with Kentucky, the Bayou Tigers lost four out of five of the regular team members by graduation.

Coach Harry Rabenhorst, however, combination of Lloyd Lindsey, center, the lone veteran of the 1934-35 campaign. Arnold Bryan and William Leathers are forwards. William Bohannon, center, and Nolan Miller and Wendell Wells at guards have come up from ranks of the reserves to form a sparkling combination.

The holiday games, however, hardly are more than skirmishes. The real campaign will not open until New Year's Day when the S. E. C. basketball wars open on all fronts, preparatory to the conference tournament at Knoxville, February 28, 29 and March 2.

William 'Lefty' Flora Signs With Orioles

ORLANDO, Fla., Dec. 25.—(AP)—William (Lefty) Flora, 21-year-old Orlando pitcher, who won 14 and lost 3 games for the Thomasville, Ga., club of the Georgia-Florida league last season, has been signed by the Baltimore Orioles, of the International league.

He will join the Orioles at their spring training camp at Kissimmee, Fla., in February.

Flora trained with the Brooklyn Dodgers here last spring. He also pitched for Oklahoma City in the Western league, Cordele, Ga., in the Southwest Georgia league, and Orlando in the abandoned Central Florida league.

Thomaston Gets Football Awards

THOMASTON, Ga., Dec. 25.—The Kiwanis Club at its last meeting gave to each of the football members a wool sweater for the splendid work team had done this season.

The present officers are Victor Thurston, president; R. L. Carter, vice president; Paul Johnston, secretary; G. S. Wheelan, treasurer. Directors are the above officers and J. W. Matt, Arlie New, Harrison Hightower, J. J. Blank, Woodbridge Green, Olin Miller, W. L. Brown, Grady Lottin.

Stevenson Wins In Feature Race

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 25.—(AP)—With Jockey Charley Stevenson on Ocan, one of the field horses, closed with a rush to beat out the favorite, Thomastown, the feature race at the Fair Grounds here today. Ocan paid $12.80 to win.

McGUGIN HOPES TO ALTER RULE GOVERNING PASS

Southeastern Conference's "New Deal" Is Chief Topic for Group.

By Bob Cavanaugh.

NEW YORK, Dec. 25.—(AP)—College athletics in general and football in particular will command the attention of 500 coaches and sports leaders from all parts of the country here in a three-day meeting starting tomorrow in the South.

Official bodies which will be in session include the National Collegiate Athletic Association, the Football Coaches' Association, the East Coast Coaches' Association, Physical Education and Student Health Association and the Sportsman's Brotherhood.

The general welfare of the college athlete will come in for a major share of discussion. One of the principal topics will be an appraisal of the new deal proposed by the Southeastern conference, grouping together 13 of the oldest and biggest colleges in the deep south.

THE TARZAN TWINS No. 100

When the boys saw themselves encircled by those hairy arms, they were too frightened to call out. But, had they cried out, no one would have heard, for the Waziri were busy exterminating the cannibals, and Ukundo and Bulala had joined joyfully in that task.

Dick turned his eyes quickly upward and, to his horror, found himself gazing at the frightening visage of a great ape! From his lips issued a low moan, which was his woeful commentary on his fate. He had been saved from cannibals, only to be captured by an ape!

Doc, too, quickly took in the situation, but before either of the boys could even begin to struggle, their ape captors lifted them up and ran across the clearing. At the edge of the jungle both leaped into the trees and swung dizzily through swaying branches.

Doc's imagination raced wildly. He was intrigued by the thought that perhaps he and Dick could live for a time among the apes and become real Tarzans. Then he bethought himself of the dumb, that weird unspeakable ceremony in which the apes kill their captives!

AN UNUSUALLY PRETTY HOUSEDRESS

This is a combination of apron and house dress, built on the lines of an overall apron. Something you can slip into with the greatest of ease, the apron is made of a light, airy material, the doorknob in too. It crosses over in the back, ties at the side, and the front has a panel from shoulders to hem to take the curve of the apron-like appearance. Furthermore there are little ruffles outlining the panel above the waistline, and more on the simply huge pockets. No sleeves, short caps, part of the blouse! A V-neck, and a belt to keep the whole thing in place.

Have you seen the new cottons with dark backgrounds and bright little flowers scattered over them? The blues, the Dubonnet, hunter's green, the cocoa brown, the blue, are very smart made up into garments to be worn indoors?

Send for the Fall and Winter Barbara Bell Pattern Book. Make your self attractive, practical and becoming clothes selecting designs from the one hundred and nineteen Barbara Bell well-planned, easy-to-make patterns. Interesting and exclusive fashions for little children and the difficult junior age; slenderizing, well-cut patterns for the mature figure, afternoon dresses for the most particular young women and matrons and other patterns for special occasions are all to be found in the Barbara Bell Pattern Book.
